Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—If the decision of Judge Byron B. Park of Stevens Point in the Appleton Water Works case which he directs the railroad commission to put a value on an indeterminate franchise shall be sustained by the supreme court the effect of the Wisconsin public utility law will be largely destroyed. According to lawyers who assisted in the framing of the public utility law it was the intent of the legislature to obviate the very thing which Judge Park has ordered. Placing a franchise value upon an indeterminate franchise would, they say, fix a burden upon the people, which would be almost impossible to shake off, and which is wholly foreign to the theory of Wisconsin regulation. They regard it in much the same light as legalized stock watering.

When the public utility law was enacted in 1907 a provision was incorporated in the measure permitting public service corporations to surrender their franchise and receive in lieu thereof indeterminate permits. These permits were to continue in force until the municipality served should elect to buy out such service at a price to be fixed by the railroad commission. The indeterminate permit was regarded as desirable and valuable in that it protected the existing utility against competition and duplication as long as it could render adequate and efficient service. They were regarded as preferable to many short-term franchises which the corporations would have been unable to renew on their expiration.

In the case of the Appleton Water Works the franchise was soon to expire and as the city had expressed a determination to build its own plant the private corporation seized upon the opportunity to take out an indeterminate permit for a new lease of life. This made it necessary for the city of Appleton to ask the railroad commission to value the existing plant with a view to purchasing it. Had the company not done this, the franchise would soon have expired and in itself been absolutely of no value.

In an order issued by the commission, Dec. 7, 1910 it fixed the physical value of the plant at $255,000. It assigned no value to the indeterminate permit or 252 private services connecting with the company's main line.

In an order dated May 14, 1910, regarding the water company to improve its service to the city, the commission took the view that franchises are of value, but cannot be capitalized for the purpose of exacting from the public charges based on such value.

In a decision rendered some days ago reviewing the action of the commission Judge Park takes issue with the commission on the subject of franchise values, holding that the commission should have included a franchise value in its valuation of the plant and also the value of the private services put in by citizens.

In this decision held as a matter of law that an indeterminate permit has no value. So far as the legislative purpose in providing for the indeterminate permit has been declared there is nothing which would justify the conclusion that one of the "primary considerations" was the elimination of franchise values. The perpetual exclusive privilege of an indeterminate permit of the kind and character held by plaintiff is of value and should have been considered as of value in determining the just compensation to be paid by the city of Appleton.

The plaintiff is entitled to interest from Dec. 1, 1911 to Feb. 1, 1912, on the sum of $225,000, and it was unlawful for the commission to provide for the payment of the interest from the time the municipality took possession of the plant until the $225,000 was tendered for payment.

"The plaintiff is entitled to interest from Dec. 1, 1911 on all additional sums which should have been awarded as just compensation as the same shall be determined by the commission pursuant to the judgment rendered herein."

IMPRESSIVE RITES TO ATTEND FUNERAL OF JAPANESE RULER

Solemn Obsequies for Late Mikado Will Be Held Tomorrow With Envoys of Many Nations Attending.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Tokio, Sept. 12.—After six weeks of mourning, which have given rise to demonstrations of patriotism almost without parallel in the history of Japan, the funeral ceremony of the Emperor Meiji, who died on July 30, will be celebrated tomorrow evening on the Aoyama parade grounds. The interment will follow at Matsuyama, where an estate has been purchased by the imperial household as the site of the imperial mausoleum.

Tomorrow's obsequies will be a magnificent tribute from the people of Japan and the powers of the world to the memory of the late Emperor. It will be the most numerous assembly of eminent representatives of foreign rulers ever brought together in this country. The United States has sent Philander Knox, Secretary of State, the sending of whom on such a mission is understood to be without precedent in the history of the great American republic. That Japan fully appreciates the unusual courtesy has been evidenced by the marked cordiality with which Secretary Knox and his party have been everywhere received since their arrival in the country.

Two other foreign envoys of note have shared equally with Secretary Knox as the recipients of official courtesy and public attention. They are Prince Arthur of Connaught, representing King George of Great Britain, and Prince Henry of Prussia, representing the German Emperor. Neither Prince Arthur nor Prince Henry is a stranger to Japan. The former was sent here several years ago by the late King Edward to bestow the insignia of the Order of the Garter upon the Emperor Meiji. While Prince Henry of Prussia has twice visited Japan in his capacity as an officer of the German navy.

In addition to those named the foreign envoys include distinguished representatives of the Czar of Russia, the Emperor of Austria-Hungary, the King of Italy, the King of Spain and the President of the French Republic.

The foreign envoys, as well as all other participants in the funeral procession, will march on foot. Carriages will be used only to convey the Empress, the Dowager Empress and the Princesses of the blood. Tokio's millions and great crowds of visitors from the provinces will line the route of the procession, which will start from the main entrance of the palace and proceed by way of the new road, thence to the right along the moat, through Uchisaiwacho and thence through Omotesando street into the parade ground, where a large building has been especially constructed in which to hold the funeral services.

The order of the funeral procession will be as follows: Imperial body guards; mounted police in modern dress; representatives of the old feudal nobility; spearmen in ancient costume; musicians playing on native instruments; priests carrying mortuary and other emblems and priests carrying offerings of food, to be presented at the grave of the emperor; a solitary mourner, attired as a pilgrim, bearing a pair of high wooden shoes for the weary feet of the emperor on his last long journey.

Imperial princes dressed in the old mourning garb of Japan; Shinto priests in white robes; funeral car, drawn by six white oxen; officers of the court; six white horses of the emperor; princesses and other ladies of the court; high officials in full court dress; members of the diplomatic corps; foreign envoys; officers of the army and navy; members of the imperial household; garrison of Tokio; sailors from the fleet.

CHARGES JEALOUSY KEEPS LA FOLLETTE FROM THIRD PARTY

Veiled Thrusts at Wisconsin Senator Mark Governor Johnson's Address at Madison.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—Veiled thrusts at Senator La Follette and the declaration that the Wisconsin progressives should not be swayed by animosity and petty jealousy, but should join the national progressive party and an outline of the platform upon which the campaign would be conducted, featured the address of Governor Johnson of California in the assembly chamber here this morning.

Has Small Audience. The vice presidential nominee of the progressive party was introduced by C. T. Richmond, some years ago prohibition candidate for governor of this state. An audience of about 300 people, mostly capitol employees, listened to Governor Johnson.

Governor Johnson eulogized Theodore Roosevelt by quoting words from Senator La Follette spoken five years ago as "the greatest living American."

To Enter Campaign. Washington, Sept. 12.—Senator La Follette has left Washington for a western tour where it is expected he will enter actively the campaign for progressive candidates on state tickets. He made no mention in Washington upon the action of the Wisconsin progressives yesterday declaring the new progressive party represented the "nationalization of Wisconsin progressivism."

Members of Party in Germany Will Arrange Important Matters in Coming Meeting.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, Sept. 12.—The greatest political gathering in point of numbers and in many respects the most important of the year will begin at Chemnitz, Saxony, on Sept. 15th, when the social democrats get together for a general meeting. Here will party differences be adjusted and plans for the future campaign be mapped out. Present indications are that the meeting will be marked by many bitter contests. All the political leaders of whatever faction declared that any important differences of opinion existed within the party, but the revolutionist branch of the organization affirmed it.

URGES CO-OPERATIVE UNION FOR FARMERS

Secretary of Society of Equity Says Power of Producers' Organizations Should Be Centralized.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—An industrial co-operative union that will centralize the power and strength of all the different farmers and producers' organizations, is a plan outlined by M. Wes Tubbs, secretary of the Wisconsin Society of Equity. Mr. Tubbs shows that there are cotton growers, fruit growers, berry growers, potato growers, grape growers, butter makers, canners and other associations to aid the farmer in marketing his crop at the highest price.

"We have the greatest aggregation of organizations on earth," he declares, "yet the most perfect scheme of organization imaginable so far as making effective co-operative action possible and in fact we are about as powerless in compelling commercial, political and industrial reforms, or in undertaking the development of some great industrial enterprise like a packing plant for our live stock, or a cold storage plant for our butter, cheese, eggs and poultry as though we were entirely unorganized."

Mr. Tubbs says that the country needs immediately a strong organization that will knit together these subsidiary organizations, so that "it can exact financial support to put through necessary industrial and distributive facilities; so that it can initiate reforms and secure solidarity—local, state and national."

"We must all admit the necessity for a centralized organization, and the possibilities of effective co-operation. We know that organization is the first step, and that education must precede organization," concludes Mr. Tubbs' letter to the public. "We know the cheapest and most effective means of education is through a newspaper and printed matter generally. We know trust-controlled newspapers and controlled farm papers, devoting all their attention to increased production, are working in the interest of the speculator when it comes to marketing. And we know they do not always tell us the truth about important state and national questions that must be solved through legislation, nor all about the candidates who are to make and execute the laws."

BULL MOOSE SECURE BUT TWO CANDIDATES

Reports Progressive Victory in Colorado Are More Nearly Completed.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Denver, Sept. 12.—Returns today from Tuesday's state-wide primary reversed the course the progressive wing of the republican party. Progressive republicans elected only two candidates who had announced they were Roosevelt progressives—Philip B. Stewart for governor by apparently less than 1,000 majority over Clifford C. Parks, regular republican, and for attorney general Benjamin Griffiths, present incumbent.

Stewart's victory it is said today, precludes the launching of a complete Roosevelt progressive party state ticket which was to be placed on the November ballot by petition.

Elmas M. Ammons, won the democratic gubernatorial race by probably 3,000 over Thomas Ryan, warden of the Colorado state penitentiary. Progressive democrats were chosen for all state offices.

There were no contests for presidential electoral nominations, democratic and republican parties each selecting six electors.

REBELS PLAN ATTACK UPON AGUA PRIETA

GENERAL STEEVER NOTIFIED WAR DEPARTMENT OF THEIR MOVEMENTS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

One Thousand Rifles Received at Naco, Arizona—Federal Troops Repulse Rebel Attacks.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Brigadier General Steever telegraphed the war department today that the Mexican rebels under Rojas were planning to finally attack Agua Prieta opposite Douglas, Ariz., at 10 o'clock this morning, mountain time. The Mexican rebels entered last night at El Paso including 350 Yaqui Indians, being rushed to the defense.

To Arm Americans. Coincident with the dispatch with the reinforcements for the Mexican federal garrison at Agua Prieta, the arrival at Naco, Ariz., of one thousand Krag-Jorgensen rifles and 500 carbines with ammunition was reported by Gen. Steever. They will be available for the arming of Americans on the border.

Rebel Reverse. Gen. Steever also transmitted reports of impending revolutions in Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas. Later advised concerning the fight at Cuahuila indicate the rebels lost heavily in men and supplies.

The federal forces drove the enemy before them and forced them to ford the Concho river on rafts. The rebels 1,000 strong

POETIC GENIUS OBTAINS DISCHARGE FROM JAIL [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Marshfield, Sept. 12.—Because of the poet's manner in which Joseph Smith, an inmate of the Wood county jail, expressed his desire to be free in a letter to Municipal Judge Wagner today, the judge ordered the man released after serving 15 days of his 30 day sentence. County officials agreed the man was such a genius he deserved his liberty. TRAINING SCHOOL VISITATION PLANS Members of the Faculty Plan Inspection Trips to Various Country Schools—Other School News. The training school instructors will soon begin their visitation of the country schools, going first to those taught by the graduates. This inspection will begin on Friday, when one of the teachers will visit two schools. This inspection will continue through the fall months. Senior Officers. The senior class has organized and elected officers as follows: President, Margaret Vickerman, Milton Junction; vice president, Harriet Connors, Janesville; secretary, Nora McCarthy, Edgerton; treasurer, Margaret Mawhinney, Lima. This class numbers twenty members who expect to complete the work next June. Other Notes. Carpenter and painters have been busy the past week adding to the convenience and appearance of our equipment. A collection of minerals has been added to our case of exhibits. Principal Louth spoke recently on the subject "How to Study" giving the students valuable hints how best to get their lessons. A large number of papers and magazines has been subscribed for, and our reading table is found to be a valuable adjunct to our work. Mary F. Cullen of Milton Junction has entered the senior class. Miss Cullen expects to be able to complete our course in one semester owing to work done elsewhere. Miss Esther Darnum of Orfordville is out of school for several days, because of illness. Miss Vera E. Irving of Russell, Ill., will enter the training school in November. Miss Mary Cullen of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, will begin the work in our school next week. We have room for two or three more, but find our present number the right size for good work. Margaret Mawhinney was obliged to be out of school several days on account of sickness. A new case has been placed in the library for the purpose of holding various illustrative or exhibit material. Mr. Louth visited the Field Museum and the Art Museum in Chicago on Saturday. Miss Jacobson will visit some of the school graduates near Orfordville on Friday. It is our purpose to help the graduates in all possible ways. 90c worth of Liqueur Soap for 25c Saturday only. OBITUARY. Henry C. Schumaker, the well known broom-maker, died at six o'clock this morning at his home, 613 Cherry street. He had been ill for a year. Mr. Schumaker was born in Prussia, Germany, March 23, 1864. He is survived by his wife, eight children, and five grandchildren. His sons are: Henry of Oshkosh, Frank of Beloit, and Arthur and Harry Schumaker of this city. His daughters, Mrs. E. E. Kneip, and the Misses Emma and Elise Schumaker, all live in Janesville. He also leaves two brothers, Herman of this city and Fred of Milwaukee, and one sister, Mrs. Fred Krueger of Whitewater. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. The Rev. Father L. Williams of Trinity Episcopal church will officiate. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery. POSTMASTERS IN SESSION DISCUSS VITAL MATTERS. Columbus, Mo., Sept. 12.—The new Sunday closing law, simplification of the register and money order business, the postal savings system and the new law whereby a clerk or carrier may be put on a 5-hour day, were some of the questions taken up at the second day's session of the National Association of Postmasters of the second and third classes today. Tomorrow the place for the next meeting will be decided and officers elected. Washington, D. C., is prominently mentioned as the next meeting place. MAIL TRAIN JUMPS TRACK; FOUR SERIOUSLY INJURED [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The Wabash Mail on the Rome, Watford and Ogdensburg division of the New York Central railroad, running sixty miles an hour, jumped the track at Morton, twenty-five miles this side of Rochester today. Two passengers and the engineer and fireman were seriously injured. A number of other passengers suffered slight injuries.

HEADACHY, BILIOUS, UPSET? "CASCARETS." Bilious, Throbbing Headache Means Bowels are Clogged and Liver Stagnant—You Need Cascarets. You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Edgerton Tobacco Man Takes Bride

Edgerton Tobacco Man Takes Bride John J. Marks and Mrs. Annie Teisberg Union in Marriage—Schmeling-Brown Nuptials. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Edgerton, Sept. 12.—Last night at six o'clock at the bride's residence on Albion road occurred the marriage of John J. Marks and Mrs. Annie Teisberg, both of this city. Rev. J. Linnebo, pastor of the local Norwegian Lutheran church, performed the ceremony which was attended by near relatives and invited friends. After the ceremony a short reception was given, after which a three-course dinner was served. Later in the evening the newly weds departed by auto to a nearby point and this morning left for Milwaukee to attend the state fair, intending to be absent one week. Upon their return they will reside at the bride's home. Both have resided in this city for many years and are well and favorably known, and their large circle of friends extend hearty congratulations. The groom is well known to tobacco dealers and growers as well, having been connected with a prominent leaf firm here for many years in the capacity of foreman. Married in Rockford. Fred Brown and Miss Carrie Schmeling stole a march on their friends by quietly going to Rockford yesterday where they were married. The groom is a member of the firm of Brown Bros., conducting a meat market here; and the bride for several years held a position as saleslady at the department store. Edgerton will be their future home. City Lets Contract. The city authorities have let the contract to Bartz Bros. for the laying of a sewer walk alongside the street at Market Maves property in the second ward. The construction of this walk has been before the council for a number of months and a few weeks ago an order was issued directing Mr. Maves to build the same. Upon his failure so to do, the work will be done by the city and the cost charged in with Mr. Maves' taxes on the tax roll. Edgerton News Notes. Mrs. Otto Drager is spending the week with R. C. Schmeling's family at the Lake House on Lake Koshkonong. Mrs. J. W. Conn left for Milwaukee yesterday to spend the remainder of the week. Mr. Conn will join her Sunday to spend the day with friends. Thomas Quigley went to Milwaukee this morning to attend the state fair. His position of day marshal was filled by B. J. Springer, night policeman. Mrs. W. Winnie, Mrs. J. G. Lindon and Mrs. R. S. Young, sisters of Mrs. Mille Collins, who have been here guests for a number of days, departed last night for their homes in Clear Lake, Iowa. J. A. Thompson, Joseph J. Leary and Frank Kellogg are state fair visitors in Milwaukee today.

DEMOCRATS SHOWED LACK OF HARMONY Meeting of County Committee Was Marked by Wrangling Over Points of Procedure and Over Adjournment. Wrangling over points of procedure marked the re-organization meeting of the Rock county democratic committee in the circuit court chambers this afternoon, and at three o'clock the delegates present were still discussing the question as to whether or not they could adjourn for two weeks without effecting an organization. The convention was opened about two o'clock, after the delegates and visitors had assembled for an informal session in the court house. The meeting was called to order by County Chairman E. H. Connell, and almost immediately the lack of harmony was shown. The first clash was over the right of delegates to vote proxies before the meeting was organized. Back of the wrangle was the fact that there are two rival candidates for state committeeman from this district, and the friends of Andrew Jensen of Edgerton want him named in place of J. T. Cunningham, the present state committeeman who seeks reappointment. A motion to admit the proxies was ruled out. The motion to adjourn was then taken up and again the discussion arose as to whether adjournment could be taken without violating the provisions of the law regarding the organization of county committees. On the one hand it was held that an adjourned meeting would serve the same purpose as a meeting held today, the other side contending that if the meeting were adjourned without organizing the committee would lose its right to recognition. The number of committeemen present was twelve, they being: O. P. Murvin, Fulton; J. P. Ward, Avalon; Frank R. Morris, Milton Junction; J. P. Ward, Spring Valley; A. Baldwin, Clinton; Roger Goodwin, John Reardon, Beloit; T. A. Ellington, Edgerton and E. H. Connell and I. P. Connors of this city. W. E. Warr is acting as secretary of the meeting.

Massachusetts may be slow, but a new record in organized baseball was made there the other day, when for ten innings Meldon Wolfgang, of Lowell, held Lynn to no hits and no runs without a man reaching first base. The records show four no-hit, no-run games for ten innings, but Wolfgang's feat of allowing no man to reach first in ten innings is said to be unique.

Trouble is ahead for President Tom Lynch of the National League. Chicago Cub fans are sore, claiming he has favored the Giants. Some Chicago sport writers who are especially ill-tempered say he butted into the league on a rain check and will ride out on a roller.

Giant rosters, on the other hand, claim that Lynch has favored the Cubs, and point to the fact that he refused to suspend Zimmermann when the latter took extraordinary liberties with the language code provided for the diamond.

College footballers are very happy over the fact that the world series baseball games are to be played early this year. The date set is October 8.

In other years the lateness of the series has played havoc with the football games. An early world's series will mean a big increase in the Louis Comiskey, son of the Chicago White Sox owner, is winning his race with adiposity at a Battle Creek Sanitarium. Physicians say he must cut off 150 pounds or run the risk of dying from overweight. In a month he has lost 28 pounds. His program consists of a special diet, baths and massage "every few minutes" and Swedish movements. He is not forced to take very much exercise. Louis now weighs only 350 pounds.

Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox is the new king of pitchers. Such sterling artists as Walter Johnson, Ed Walsh, Jack Coombs and Chief Bender must admit that he has a clear title to the crown. It belonged to Joe when he scored his thirtieth victory out of thirty-four games played. The next best record was made by Wild Bill Donovan of Detroit, who in 1907 won twenty-five victories and sustained four defeats. In 1904 Jack Chesbro won forty-one games, but he lost twenty-three. His total record was 174. Wood is now traveling at an 882 clip, which bids fair to finish ahead of Donovan's record of .892 in 1904.

Wood's rise is one of the wonders of baseball. He's a kid yet—won't be twenty-three until this coming October 25. He was born in Kansas City and began his professional career with the Hutchinson (Western association) team in 1907.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PARK ASSOCIATION

Old Officers Re-Elected and New Board of Directors Selected at Business Session Last Night.

At the annual business meeting of the Janesville Driving Park Association, held last evening in the assembly room at the city hall, the old officers of the association, John C. Nichols, president; Charles S. Putnam, secretary and Edward Amerphol, treasurer, were re-elected, and a new board of seven directors, comprising John Soultman, Frank Crook, John J. Sheridan, Charles Putnam, Edward Amerphol, Harry Nowlan and John C. Nichols, was selected. The association also decided to assume additional indebtedness to pay outstanding bills. The stock of the association is divided into 135 shares, of which twenty-two shares have been subscribed for, but the money has not been paid in. The new board of directors was instructed to collect the amount due, about $2,000, for these shares. A vote of thanks was extended to Secretary Charles S. Putnam for his work for the association at the recent race meet and during the past year, and to the retiring directors for their services.

The association now has one of the best grounds of its kind in the country and the prospects for a most successful season next year are very bright. The recent race meeting was a great success in every way, financially and in advertising Janesville as a city and as a racing center. Outside horsemen who were here were greatly pleased with the treatment accorded them and it is possible that several of them may decide to do their spring training at the track here. Additional stalls for the accommodation of the horses will probably be built next spring. A number of stable owners have already written to Mr. Putnam for accommodations here to train their animals here for next season.

"DIVORCE QUESTION" IS POWERFUL DRAMA

Play By William Anthony McGuire, Presented at Myers' Last Night Makes Strong Appeal.

Had one entertained doubts as to the possibility of writing a problem play making an appeal to both intellect and emotions, by dialogue and by action, and of staging it without losing and confusing its message, that doubt would be removed by witnessing a performance of "The Divorce Question," the play of William Anthony McGuire, presented at the Myers' theater last night.

"The Divorce Question," without exaggeration of speech, is a tremendously "gripping" play. Its purpose, the exposure of a great social cancer and its consequences of broken families, homeless and neglected children is carried out with marked success, as is also the second, though perhaps not secondary motive, of justifying the position of the Roman Catholic church on the question of divorce.

The play would be almost pure tragedy were it not for the humorous situations of a subsidiary elopement story, and some of the situations have an almost irresistible emotional appeal but the appeal is always legitimate, never induced by artificial or unnatural means.

Perhaps the most difficult role in the play is that of "Dopie" played by Douglas Lawrence. "Dopie," as the name would indicate, is a victim of the drug habit, as the result of the hardships which followed abandonment by his divorced parents. His makeup, actions, and speech were very realistic, representing the depths of degradation.

But there is one redeeming trait in "Dopie," his steadfast love and care of his sister, "Mamie" whom he protects from the clutches of a white slaver. Virginia Markham carried this role very creditably.

Willis Hall in the part of the Rev. William Jerome, Edmund Carroll as Herbert Lockwood and Barbara Douglas as Mrs. Roger Mannors, the couple whose divorce brings a harvest of misery, were well fitted for their parts, showing admirable restraint in situations easily overcome.

Beth Hamilton as Catherine Spaulding, and Leo Dumont as Harold Kicklebush, made a decided "hit" in the role of a youthful couple bent on quick marriage, acting their parts with a faithfulness to life that almost conveyed their embarrassment to the audience.

John C. Leach as Patrick Skelly, the Irish servant of the Rev. Jerome, showed a fine appreciation of the possibilities of his part.

"GRAUSTARK"

"Graustark," the dramatization by Grace Hayward, of George Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same title, comes to the Myers Theatre, Thursday, Sept. 19, matinee and evening. This is one of the big theatrical successes of years. The play teems with heart interest. All its absorbing situations revolve around the love affairs of the Princess Yveta of "Graustark" and Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy, dashing, handsome young American. The young lover is falsely accused of having slain a rival. His life is in jeopardy when Anguish, Lorry's artist friend, shrewdly guesses the man and wins a confession by running his strong American bluff.

The abduction of a Princess, the murder of a Prince, the escape and re-appearance of a falsely accused lover and his final acceptance by Princess Yveta and her people, are features of gripping interest which makes the play so successful. It unfolds a story of a love behind a throne in a delightful manner, without sacrificing any of the intense interest. Romantically inclined persons find the play to their liking.

Scenically, it is a marvel of that art. The hotel, boudoir and throne room settings are gorgeously artistic, conveying ideas of court splendor which are rounded out by the costumes of the players, each being exactly suited to the requirement of the play, nothing is lacking in the lavish equipments of this spectacular romantic and quite consistent play.

The artists engaged in the interpretation of the different characters are thoroughly fitted for the parts they are portraying, each having been carefully selected for their capabilities.

"Graustark" must prove the biggest dramatic treat of the season when presented at the Myers Theatre.

"OLIVER TWIST." A novelty in moving picture entertainment will be seen at the Myers theatre on Saturday and Sunday, September 14 and 15, matinee Saturday and Sunday, when "Oliver Twist" with Nat C. Goodwin in the part of Fagin will be given in film form. Mr. Goodwin has recently been acting this famous Dickens' character in an all

NO LAUGHING MATTER.

"It would be foolish to underestimate the importance of the nomination of Oscar S. Straus for the governorship of New York on the Roosevelt platform. The convention was the queerest collection of delegates ever seen since the old Populist days. It was made up of earnest male and female philanthropists, who feel rather than think, and are moved by compassion more than reason. To these were joined cranks, charlatans, the discarded politicians of both parties, office-seekers, parasites, soreheads and fanatics. A mob rather than a convention; and yet it nominated a candidate for governor who is certain to run well, with a most respectable ticket to support him.

"What was the most striking feature of a dramatic situation? It was that nobody laughed. A Jew of the highest reputation was nominated, and the convention sang 'Onward Christian Soldiers,' and nobody smiled at the incongruity of the combination. With the platform few men of reasoned convictions can be in sympathy, except on those parts where all parties are agreed. Much of it is experimental, much ridiculous, and some dangerous. But there was a note of earnestness about the matter; and any section of the American people means business where it forgets its sense of humor."

A New York financial paper thus comments on the convention which recently nominated Oscar S. Straus for governor on the Roosevelt ticket. It will be remembered that the Chicago progressive convention adjourned with a benediction, after singing the doxology. This was the keynote for an emotional campaign, and the people who have been the most active have shouted themselves hoarse very much as they used to do in an old fashioned Methodist revival.

Colonel Roosevelt scored a ten strike when he came out for woman suffrage, because he enlisted the sympathy and enthusiastic support of a constituency whose heart lies close to the surface. He is impulsive himself and many of his supporters are influenced by feeling, and feeling usually finds expression in demonstration.

There is certainly no lack of while in the Roosevelt campaign, and while this is commendable, the fact should not be overlooked that the heart is not always a safe guide. Riots and mobs are the result of hasty and impulsive heart action, which judgment prevents when the mind has a chance to act.

The national progressive party is the offspring of impulse, inspired by a man who enjoyed the idolatrous worship of an impulsive constituency. That he is honest in the belief that he and he alone can save the nation from many ills, which are largely imaginary, may not be questioned.

He appeals to the masses, because it is so much easier to feel than to think, and the New York convention, which nominated Mr. Straus, is typical of the audiences which greet him in all parts of the country.

The question of safe and sane government demands more than a sympathetic heart. The problems involved call for the highest order of statesmanship, free from prejudice or bigotry.

President Taft may not inspire the shout, but he possesses a mind that is clear and judgment that is safe, combined with a heart that is clean and wholesome. It will pay to think, at least once, before deciding to turn him out.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

The importance of industrial education, for girls as well as boys, is just now commanding attention, and the last Wisconsin legislature passed a law which calls for the establishment of industrial schools, under high school supervision. This is a move in the right direction, which will be thoroughly appreciated by the masses. The following news story will be read with interest, in this connection. It applies to conditions as they exist, and the suggestions offered are very practical.

The question, "Should the daughter of a laborer attend high school?" has been raised since a Philadelphia judge has decided that she should not.

"She should not," said Miss Edna Finch, factory inspector under the health department. But Miss Finch qualifies this remark with "Unless she can see an opportunity ahead of her of attending normal school or the university."

"The average high school course does not fit a poor girl for the battle of life. She may get some knowledge of the sciences, but that unfits her, rather than fits her. Of course I do not mean the commercial course nor the new household arts course. I think either would be beneficial to rich as well as poor girls."

Before Miss Finch accepted the position of factory inspector she was an instructor in the public schools, and had occasion to watch the working out of high school education.

"I can't help but think that in many cases the poor girl would be better off if she were to enter a shop and learn some trade in which she can advance herself," adds Miss Finch.

There are so many opportunities open to her if she only takes advantage of them. For instance, in the knitting factories girls after they learn their trades earn a good salary, and better than all, they are independent.

"Isn't it better for the average poor girl to be independent than to be absolutely dependent upon her poor parents? I do not mean that she should remain ignorant. If she has the right material in her she will get good books and read those things which bring pleasure and enlightenment to her. And while she is attaining this education and learning those things that she delights in learning, she not only supports herself but helps her parents and builds a fine character for herself."

"Of course, if a girl is able to attend high school with the idea of attending normal school or the university, she should go by all means. But the regular high school course is merely a preparatory course for something higher.

"The mental training that the girl receives in the high school is no greater than that which she could attain by judicious reading and self-education."

The name of Paul Peck, a boy of twenty-two years of age, was added to the death roll, at the aviation field in Chicago, last evening. It will be noticed that the men who take long chances both in the air and on the track, are mostly young men who are filled with the reckless, dare-devil spirit of the age. If air navigation is ever reduced to a science, it will be after the men who exploit it, come to their senses. The law of gravity is relentless.

The play put on at the opera house last night, "The Divorce Question," is one of the best that has been seen in Janesville, in many a day. It was strong and clean and the moral so impressive, and so true to life, that it will be long remembered. The little company which presented it was well balanced, and every part was well taken. Some of the local clergy were present, and all of them would have profited by attendance.

That the progressive party is not a republican organization was fully demonstrated at the convention of the new party, held in Milwaukee, yesterday. McGovern will be obliged to choose which party he will attempt to lead, and whatever may be his decision, defeat stares him in the face. Wisconsin has had a full dose of progressive reform, and the voters are simply waiting to register a protest.

Our export trade in beef, with Great Britain has fallen off to practically nothing, and political economists are attempting to discover the reason. The high price of corn, the scarcity of cattle, and the heavy demands of the home market, have everything to do with conditions. Times have been good so long that everybody has cultivated the meat habit.

The women of Idaho, not satisfied with political conditions, will place a state ticket in the field, composed entirely of women. Whether or not Colonel Roosevelt will be supported, is not stated.

Governor Deneen of Illinois is attempting to lead the republican party in the state, and the progressives are making life a burden to him. The colonel demands the whole loaf or none.

JEWISH NEW YEAR OPENS AT SUNDOWN

Festival Most Important in Jewish Calendar—Observed by Both Orthodox and Reformed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, Sept. 12.—The setting of the sun this evening ushers in the Jewish new year 5673. The festival is one of the most important of the Jewish calendar and is sedulously observed by the reformed and orthodox alike. The orthodox carry the observance over two days, during which time they cease all work. The reformed Jews celebrate only one day.

There are more than sixty Jewish churches in Greater New York, but even this large number is insufficient to accommodate the large number of worshippers on important feast or fast days. This lack of adequate accommodation is not to be wondered at in view of the fact that nearly 1,000,000, or considerably more than half of the total number of Jews in America, reside in this city.

For the present holiday season the Kehillah, or Jewish Community of New York, has made arrangements to use a number of provisional synagogues. The organization has also made arrangements for the holding of services for the tuberculosis camp at Westfield, at the emigrant station at Ellis Island and in various other public institutions.

CLINTON

Clinton, Sept. 12.—Edwin Arlington and bride spent Sunday here with his mother and sister.

Mrs. Emma L. C. Hatch returned Monday evening from her visit with her sister and family at St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kizer returned to their home at Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday morning.

Mrs. F. R. Helmer and daughter, Helen, were in Janesville yesterday.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist church the nine boxes were opened and money counted and over $50 was found in them.

Frank Bashaw of Beloit, was here yesterday. He may locate here and engage in the painting and decorating business. Mr. Bashaw was an old boyhood schoolmate of A. J. Boden at Lake Geneva.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

That overcoat I threw away last spring. Gee whiz! but I was tired of the thing. I swore I never would put it on again. Its cut gave me a large three-cornered pain.

'Twas worn around the cuffs and lapel, too. The velvet collar was a fright to view. 'Twas ready for the rag bag, without doubt. When summer came I gladly threw it out. I said I'd save my coin all summer and Amex an overcoat that would be grand.

But now the chilly winds are almost here. The blizzard of the winter time is near. I've counted-up my coin, alas, alack! I wish that I could get that old coat back.

Election Time. Lem Higgins says he doesn't know just how the country's going to go.

'Tis mighty hard for even him to venture to prognosticate. When Lem says that it's plain to see surprises are in store, for he is quite the greatest expert that we have on grave affairs of state. The country may go Democrat. He wouldn't be surprised at that. And it may go the Bull Moose way, for things are mixed up very bad.

He says there's only one safe bet. It's a prohibition yet, but none can tell just what will come, for folks have all gone tariff mad.

Lem says the tariff on yarn, socks will put a crimp in Taft and Knox.

It looks sometimes as though the whole blame bunch is going to be upset.

He says that predatory wealth is bad for our commercial health. And that the postal saving banks are going to finger quite a lot.

Seems like they got old Lem perplexed for once, and us folks are all vexed.

Belius we always bank on him to find out how we ought to vote.

It saves us worry, don't you see, to shift responsibility.

But it seems like a bigger load this year than Lem can safely tote.

Lem has been busy since last spring just readin' up regards the thing. And he ain't satisfied the way the ship of state is headin' now.

He says Bill Taft has gone to sleep and that he ain't no man to keep a putterin' round the White House any longer, we must all allow.

her home on the corner of Church and Cross streets, Mr. Hughes who has charge of the Fuller and Johnson exhibit at the state fair was expected home this morning.

A large number of our citizens are attending the state fair this week.

A party from Beloit was in town yesterday investigating the feasibility of starting a moving picture show here.

A. J. Boden's handsome new soda fountain has arrived and a force of men are at work installing it and expect to have it ready for business Saturday afternoon.

Master Gaylard Bradley and Lloyd Pye spent Tuesday at Beloit.

Mrs. Ed McCarthy and children of Beloit are visiting Mrs. Leo Pye and family.

Considerable complaint is being made by the farmers because the west side of Main street has been closed so long, where the new gutter was laid.

RAIL TRAFFIC EXPERTS CONVENTION IN SEATTLE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Seattle, Wash., Sept. 12.—Several hundred representatives of the passenger departments of the leading railroads of the United States and Canada gathered in Seattle today for the fifty-seventh annual convention of the American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents. The convention will be in session two days. In addition to discussing numerous technical matters the members will listen to addresses by President Sprague of the Southern Pacific and several other prominent railroad executives. The indications point to the election of R. H. Wallace of the Erie Railroad to succeed C. A. Cairns, of the Chicago & Northwestern, as president of the association.

British Premier 60 Years Old. London, Sept. 12.—The Rt. Hon. Herbert H. Asquith, premier of Great Britain, quietly celebrated his sixtieth birthday anniversary today. During the day he was the recipient of a flood of congratulatory messages from friends and admirers in all parts of the United Kingdom and Canada, Australia and other of the overseas dominions.

But still he says he ain't so sot in the opinions that he's got. But what he might not vote for him again, providin' he makes good. Taft is all right in lots of ways and Lem don't think it ever pays To count a feller down and out, while he's still savin' wood. Fact is Lem don't know where he's at—Republican or Democrat—And won't while them Progressives keep right on a-rasin' merry hob.

He's goin' to save his mental force and let the blamed thing take its course. As town expert on politics, Lem Higgins has thrown up his job.

Ever Thus. Willie Jones, he up and married; Thought that it would me some fun. To support a little wife: Two could live as cheap as one. Paid a dollar for the license, Gave the minister a 2; Then he thought, did little Willie: "Spending money, I am through."

Settled in a little cottage. Coal man called around one day. Had a little talk with Willie. Three months' wages then to pay. Gas man, ice man, grocer, butcher, Baker and dressmaker, too. Plumber, 'phone man, also landlord. And they cleaned him through and through.

Satisfied Customers:

An eminent New York surgeon was called suddenly by a charitable organization to attend a poor man in the extreme of sickness. His ministrations were watched anxiously and with small favor by the man's wife. As he finished and turned to go he remarked pleasantly to her, "Well, I think he will pull through now." "Oh, my, ain't that too bad?" she said. "Why do you say that you heartless unnatural woman?" he wrathfully demanded. "Well, you see," was the answer "when they called you I sold all his clothes." Nothing is so hard as to satisfy other people when we do not know just what they want. When we know exactly what is wanted or what is not wanted, it is our fault if we fail. The eternal problem of a great store is the dissatisfied customer. It is not slow deliveries, high prices, nor small quantities. It is the customer who goes away without comment when she sees something she doesn't like and never returns. If she would tell us her troubles they would be eliminated. Many an honest and striving storeman has groaned "If customers would only kick."

GARBAGE COLLECTION REMAINS A PROBLEM

Improvement in Local Situation But City Officers Are Still Seeking To Better Service.

Garbage collection still remains a problem in Janesville, as it does in hundreds of other cities throughout the country. A more regular disposal of garbage and better sanitary conditions followed the passage of a compulsory collection ordinance by the council some time ago, but the present state of affairs is far from satisfactory and the Council is still studying the problem with the hope of securing further improvement. Mayor Fathers has received numerous inquiries from other cities on the methods used in this city and their success, showing that the problem is not a local one.

Before the passage of the compulsory collection ordinance complaint was made that there were not enough teamsters willing to haul away the garbage. These complaints have ceased to come into the office of the Mayor and it is known that there are at least three or four teamsters, who stand ready to do that kind of work. Some property owners and tenants are very careless. But recently the Mayor received a complaint from a West Milwaukee street business place that a neighbor kept a barrel of ill smelling garbage in the alley. He was asked to have it taken away in half an hour's time and obeyed promptly.

Mayor Fathers is of the opinion that the ultimate method will be the provision of a fund in the annual budget for the purpose of paying for garbage collection. The system of collection by the city and payment by fee is open to the objection that it would be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible for the city to collect the fees, especially from transient tenants. Frequent inspections, and prosecutions where warnings are not heeded is necessary to enforce the compulsory collection ordinance.

STUDENTS IN NEED OF SELF-RELIANCE

Supr. Buell Tells High School Pupils To Learn To Rely On Own Resources.

"Cultivate self-reliance" was Prof. H. C. Buell's advice to the students at the opening of high school this morning. The quality itself is a foundation for success, he said and by attaining it the purpose of education was realized in no small degree.

The members of the senior class were complimented when it was pointed out that they had learned the value of self-reliance. There were some in the school however, who were inclined to depend on the classmates for aid in getting their lessons, and lacking initiative of their own became backward and careless. When difficulties arose in regard to lessons, Mr. Buell urged the students to discuss them frankly with their various instructors, rather than enter class sulkingly with lessons unprepared.

LARGE CROWDS DEPARTED FOR THE FAIRS TODAY

One Hundred and Fifty Went To Milwaukee To State Fair, And Eighty-Five To Monroe.

Janesville was represented today at the state fair at Milwaukee by about one hundred and fifty of her citizens. Of this number about one hundred and ten went on the morning train on the St. Paul railroad, and forty left over the Northwestern line. There was also a good crowd to the Green county fair at Monroe, eighty-five tickets for that place being disposed of.

EXCEPTIONAL ATTRACTION IN MOTION PICTURE DRAMA.

Manager Myers Announces Nat C. Goodwin in "Oliver Twist."

In Picture Form. Manager Myers has succeeded in securing an exceptional attraction in the line of motion picture drama for Sunday, matinee and evening, Sept. 15. The dramatization of "Oliver Twist," Charles Dickens' great novel with Nat C. Goodwin, the American comedian, as Fagin, will be presented on the screen. The entire play as enacted in New York by the Goodwin cast will be presented.

CARD OF THANKS.

I take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the voters of Rock County for their hearty support at the recent primaries. It will be my aim, if elected, to justify the confidence in me which they expressed at that time.

L. E. CUNNINGHAM.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

TETANUS SERUM WAS USED SUCCESSFULLY ON HORSES

[By Associated Press.]

Holdrege, Neb., Sept. 12.—Dr. D. S. Palmer, county health officer of Phillips county, announces the successful use of tetanus serum in the treatment of horses stricken with the new disease which has been diagnosed as a form of meningitis.

Notice To Sir Knights: The Sir Knights of Janesville Commandery, No. 2 are summoned to meet at the Asylum on Friday at 12:00 to conduct the funeral services of Sir Knight I. U. Fisher. The funeral will be held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Dixon, in the Town of Center, at 2:30. Interment will be at the Bethel cemetery. Conveyances for the Sir Knights will be at the Asylum at the time appointed. M. R. Osborne, Commander.

MAYOR NAMES HELMS SEALER OF WEIGHTS

Walter Helms Only One of Four Applicants to Pass Civil Service Examination For Office.

Walter Helms was this morning appointed by Mayor James A. Fathers to the office of City Sealer of Weights and Measures, and the appointment will be confirmed by the Council at its next meeting. Mr. Helms was the only one of the four applicants for the position to pass the civil service examination conducted in this city on August 26, according to a letter received by the City Clerk this morning from the Civil Service Commission at Madison. He will enter upon his duties of his office on October 1. Mr. Helms is a proprietor of Helms Seed Store on South Main street, and is regarded as well qualified for his new office.

The city now has a complete sealer's outfit, which was recently purchased from the Fairbanks, Morse company for $178, after a careful study of the prices and equipment offered by different manufacturers. It comprises devices for testing weights, scales, and measures of all kinds, and accurate standards. The outfit was approved by the State Sealer before shipment to this city.

"The salary of the sealer's office is now $200 but it will be raised to $400 within a short time, according to the statement of Mayor Fathers.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH SCENE OF WEDDING

Miss Josephine Sheridan and Lenn Morse Are Married By Father W. A. Goppel.

The wedding of Miss Josephine Sheridan to Lenn Morse, both of this city, was solemnized at St. Mary's church this morning. Rev. Father W. A. Goppel read the marriage service. Miss Nellie Maloy of Evansville attended as bride and Fred Jungblut of this city was best man.

The bride was charming in a gown of white embroidered French voile and a large picture hat. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. The bride's maid was attired in a gown of white marquisette and carried pink roses.

Following the marriage ceremony which was attended by intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Sheridan, 538 Prairie avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Morse left on an early train for a short wedding trip to Chicago and Milwaukee, after which they will be at home to their many Janesville friends at 205 Park St.

Both the young people have a wide acquaintance here. The bride has been employed for some time past in the local office of the Western Union telegraph company and the groom has been employed at the Buchholz Carriage Works. He is the son of M. H. Morse.

TO MAKE INTERMENT AT LOCAL CEMETERY

Body of Ira U. Fisher Will Be Laid at Rest in Oak Hill Instead of Bethel Cemetery.

A change in the funeral arrangements for the late Ira U. Fisher was announced by members of the family today. The services will be held at 2:30 Friday from home of his daughter, Mrs. Will Dixon, in the Town of Center, as previously announced, but interment will be made in Oak cemetery here, instead of Bethel cemetery. The Janesville Knights Templars who will conduct the burial rites will meet the funeral procession at the cemetery here and will not attend the services at the home. The exact time of the burial services cannot be given but they will doubtless take place between 4:00 and 4:30 o'clock. Janesville friends of the deceased will welcome this opportunity to pay their respects.

CITY TO UNDERTAKE OILING OF STREETS

Next Budget to Provide For Purchase of Machine Especially Designed For Spreading Oil.

Municipal oiling of the city's macadam street is practically assured for next year according to Mayor Fathers. Provisions will likely be made in the next budget for the purchase of a machine especially designed for spreading the oil, and it will be equipped with a heater which will make it possible to utilize heavier oils, with 65 per cent or more of asphaltum. The oil can be applied at 5 cents a foot, which would be $3.20 a lot. Even if two applications are made a season, which is necessary with light oil, it would be less than the cost of sprinkling. South Main street, the first street to be oiled this season is in need of a second application of oil at this time, as are also other heavily traveled streets. The city officers are in favor of using heavy oil, one application of which should last over a year.

WILLIAMS TO ASSIST IN PROBING CHARGES

Janesville Pastor is Named on Committee to Investigate Eligibility of Oshkosh Minister at Conference.

Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Cargill M. E. church of this city, who is attending the sessions of the Wisconsin Methodist conference, was appointed a member of the special committee to investigate the charges against the Rev. W. A. Peterson, for the last year pastor of the First church at Oshkosh, which is substantiated, will necessitate the withdrawal of the Oshkosh minister from the conference.

The committee which was named by Bishop W. A. Quayle of Chicago, presiding officer of the conference, yesterday will meet this evening and will make its report at the session of the conference Thursday. In addition to Rev. Williams the other members of the committee are: Rev. W. D. Marsh, Appleton, Rev. E. T. Lagerman, Milwaukee, J. T. Leek of Randolph, and L. C. Shanks.

A second committee may be appointed after the report of the first to decide what further action shall be taken in the case.

On Aug. 27 word was received from Oshkosh to the effect that "unfortunate developments" in connection with Mr. Peterson had arisen. He appeared before the First Methodist church at Oshkosh, which it subsequently was granted him. He then dropped completely out of church work and now is visiting in Ohio. Mr. Peterson was graduated from Lawrence college at Appleton.

Just what the charges consist of is not generally known. However, it is stated that a young woman member of Mr. Peterson's church choir also is involved.

MANY PUPILS ATTEND PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

One Hundred and Eighty-Eight At St. Patrick's School, Eighty-Three At Lutheran School.

Two hundred and seventy-one Janesville children are attending parochial schools according to the most recent enrollment figures. Of these one hundred and eighty-eight attend the parochial school of St. Patrick's church, and eighty-three the school of St. Paul's German Lutheran church. Two hundred pupils is the usual attendance at St. Patrick's school and it is expected that this figure will be reached within a short time. Both schools were opened for the fall term on September 3. Principal K. A. Kath, and Miss Anna Klonke are again in charge of St. Paul's school.

MAN INJURED WHEN AUTO THREW HIM FROM BICYCLE.

Albert Kath, Mason, Slightly Injured on South River Street Yesterday Noon.

Albert Kath, a mason who has been working on the new mill being built for E. P. Doty, was thrown from his bicycle and bruised about one leg yesterday noon when an automobile struck him. The accident occurred at the corner of Dodge and River streets, as Mr. Kath was on his way to dinner. The bicycle was smashed to pieces and Mr. Kath thrown to the ground with considerable force. He was unable to work yesterday afternoon, but resumed his duties again this morning although somewhat stiff from his injuries. The driver of the automobile is not known.

VAST MINERAL LAND IS LOST TO STATE

Private Company Buys Valuable Iron Ore Tract on Which State Had An Option.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—Hundreds of thousands, if not a million of dollars, have been lost by the state as the result of too small an appropriation to the state forestry reserve. This fact is just developed by the purchases of large tracts of mineral lands in Iron and Vilas counties by Frederick Ives Carpenter of Chicago. Options upon all of the land was held by the state, but when the appropriation by the last session of the legislature would not permit of the purchase of these lands they were seized by a syndicate of men interested in the purchase of these lands because of their iron ore deposits. Except by a few officials it was not known that many of the lands upon which the state had an option contained deposits within a part of the Gogebic range.

At the last session of the legislature the senate passed a bill appropriating $100,000 annually for twenty years to be used in the purchase of land for the development of the forest reserve area. At that time the state had options upon nearly all of the lands within the forestry area.

This bill the assembly amended so as to provide for $50,000 a year for five years. State Forester Griffith appeared before the legislative committee and explained that the state had options on these lands, that they were rich in mineral deposits, but that aside from this fact they were desirable because they adjoined or were intermixed with forest reserve lands and that their acquisition was almost imperative for the protection of forest lands already acquired.

The purpose of the forestry commission was to purchase about a half million more acres in Iron and Vilas counties which would have made a fine solid forestry tract and one of the greatest values from its mineral deposits alone.

However, the state was obliged to

W. A. Smith, Bridgeton, Ind., is telling his friends and neighbors of his return to health and strength by the use of Foley Kidney Pills, and he says he wants others to benefit also. "I was so crippled with rheumatism I could not dress without help, and had kidney trouble for years. I started using Foley Kidney Pills and now all my trouble has left me and I do not feel that I ever had rheumatism. I rest well all night and though 59 years old, can now do the work of a man of 35 years. I would like to be the means of others getting benefit from Foley Kidney Pills."—Badger relinquish many of its options and now agents and experts of iron companies have gone over these lands and picked out those of value paying in many instances from $12 to $20 an acre for the mineral rights alone. The iron found in these lands is a continuation of the famous Gogebic deposit and the new owners probably will realize millions from their investment. In like manner the state probably has acquired wealth in the millions in the lands in the same counties which it has been able to purchase. In all the state has obtained in these counties this year about 70,000 acres, instead of the half million acres it desired to obtain.

Eventually it is expected the state will purchase many of these lands from the iron companies as the state control over them will be necessary to prevent forest fires in the state holdings. While in private hands these lands will be more or less in the nature of danger spots.

The state now has about 400,000 acres in forest reserves, principally in the three counties mentioned.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SOMETHING YOU OUGHT TO READ.

"SO DIFFERENT are the colors of life as we look forward to the future or backward to the past, and so different the opinions and sentiments which this contrariety of appearance produces that the conversation of old and young generally ends with contempt or pity on either side. One generation is always the scorn and wonder of the other; and the nature of the old and the young are like liquors of different quality and texture which never can unite."—Johnson.

We had been discussing the political situation and our political ideals. A very enthusiastic young man, radiant with youth's beautiful belief in a possible panacea that should promptly do away with all the trouble in the world, had been promulgating some very progressive ideas.

"Does your father agree with you, David?" someone asked.

"Oh no," said the young man with an evident touch of bitterness. "Of course he doesn't. Dad and I never agree. He makes it a point to be as conservative as he can—mostly, I think, because I'm a radical."

"This young enthusiast evidently thought he was describing a peculiar condition of things due to his father's unusual temperament. As a matter of fact he was voicing the struggle of the ages, the eternal conflict between youth and age."

I haven't a doubt but that twenty-five or thirty years ago David's father was fulminating because his father was so unprogressive; and I'm equally sure that twenty-five or thirty years hence David's son—if he exists—will be just as bitter against his father's lack of progressiveness.

Now there is a certain great essay on this subject which I think it would help every man and woman of us to read just about once a year. Probably many of you already know what I am going to say. I am speaking, of course, of Robert Louis Stevenson's essay on "Crabbed Age and Youth."

To be sure Mr. Stevenson is rather inclined to take the part of youth in this essay, but it seems to me that any old man or woman who has been young once will forgive him. And as for those old dry bones who never were young—what does it matter what they think, anyway?

Now I am not just saying all this to fill space. I really want you to see this essay. I believe it will give everyone, old and young, a wiser point of view on the whole matter.

When a firm wants to introduce a new product it not only advertises it by praises but also by samples. Please permit me to offer the following little sample of my wares.

"It is held," says Stevenson in the course of this essay, "to be a good trait, and somehow or other to clinch the question logically, when an old gentleman waggles his head and says: 'Ah so I thought when I was your age.' It is not thought an answer at all if the young man retorts: 'My venerable sir, so I shall most probably think when I am yours.' And yet the one is as good as the other: . . . When the old man waggles his head and says, 'Ah so I thought when I was your age,' he has proved the youth's case. Doubtless, whether from growth of experience, or decline of animal heat, he thinks so no longer; but he thought so when he was young; and all men have thought so while they were young since there was dew in the morning or hawthorn in May: . . ."

Doesn't that fill you with a desire to read more? . . .

Insuring Private Cup.
To insure the owner of a private shaving cup kept in a barber shop that he is its only user there has been invented a paper cap to cover it, which cannot be removed without breaking a seal.

Still a Chance for Him.
"That man will leave footprints in the sands of time," said the admirer. "No," replied the sarcastic observer. "He'll keep jumping on everything in sight till he obliterates his own tracks."

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

GENERAL CARE OF CHILDREN.

In this article a general summary of the preceding articles will be given, with perhaps, a few additional suggestions.

It will be presumed that the child is born of parents of intelligence, capable and desirous of bringing up a child which will be a credit to them and humanity.

It is best that the infant should sleep alone in its own little crib. The mother should begin immediately after birth to regulate the sleep of the child at night. Make the last feeding at night at 10 or 11 o'clock, and the first in the morning at 5 or 6 o'clock. If the child awakens and cries during the night give it a drink of water and change its position. If crying continues, and there is no symptom of the child being in pain, it is best to induce it for a few nights, and get the child broken, rather than to allow bad habits to be established. The interest of both mother and child requires that rest at night be not disturbed. The use of "soothing syrups" needs only to be mentioned to be condemned.

Regularity in feeding must be adhered to. Start right and the baby will be ready for each feeding and will not cry for food between feedings. Do not awaken the baby to feed him. About every two hours for the first four or five weeks is often enough to feed. The time can then be lengthened to about two and one-half hours until the end of the second month; every three hours from the third to the sixth month, every three and one-half hours from the sixth to ninth month and every four hours from the ninth to the twelfth month.

The infant must have a quiet life. All sudden or violent movements, frightening or rough handling either in joy or anger are forbidden. Also the carrying around of the little creature to friends and relatives, in order to make a show, kissing or fondling of it by anybody and everybody, who happen to visit, can bring nothing but detriment. The clothing must be adapted to the season and constructed so that it will not interfere with free movements of the entire body.

If born in the winter the baby should not leave the house until it is at least three months old, and then only when the weather is fairly mild and quiet.

A baby will get sufficient exercise if left to its own devices. Give it proper food, clothing, and surroundings and it will exercise.

"A normal infant should hold its head without support at the second or third month; it should sit alone at from seven to nine months, stand at about twelve months, and walk at about fifteen months."

While teething is a natural and normal process it will often cause sleeplessness, irritability and some bowel disturbances in children who are delicate, constipated, or have not had the proper food. The baby may be given some "clean," hard object to chew on. The mother may rub the gums gently with her finger. Lancing is seldom indicated.

A naturally bright child is a temptation to parents and friends to teach it cute tricks and sayings. Take care not to overdo this. The child's mentality will develop in keeping with its physical developments, which is fast enough. Besides, the foundation for future trouble may be laid.

Do not be in a hurry to put the child in school, wait until he is six or eight years old, before taxing his brain with study. A child who is very quick to learn and is bright beyond his years, is seldom heard from after he is twenty. The normal child needs lots of play and little study.

Give food of the proper kind and quality, clothes, care, opportunity to exercise, proper environment, and (this is very important) parents who have brains plus common sense, and the child stands a good chance of being heard from later in a creditable manner.

SOMETHING TO EAT.

When a novel and unusual filling for a cake is desired, try this: Bake the cake in two layers and frost them both separately. Take a cup of raisins and simmer gently for an hour or more with a few teaspoonsful of lemon juice. Spread this, well drained, over the frosted layer, then turn the other layer, frosting side down, over this, and put together. Cover with frosting. When cut, the raisins will be between the two layers of frosting. Chopped nuts are an addition to this filling.

Irish Stew.—Take two or three pounds from the neck, cut into small pieces, add enough water to cover, and simmer for an hour, then add potatoes, carrots, onions and turnips cut in small pieces, and cook for several hours at the simmering point. Serve hot, after seasoning well with salt.

Peach Pie.—Line a pie plate with crust, then lay in peeled, stoned and sliced peaches, sprinkling sugar liberally over them in proportion to their sweetness. Allow three peach kernels chopped fine to every pie. Pour in a very little water and bake with cross bars of pastry for a top crust.

Rice Pudding.—Place in a buttered pudding dish a layer of cold boiled rice, season with cream, nutmeg and sugar. Cover this with a layer of quince or apple preserves, then add another layer of rice and fruit, and over the top place a meringue made of the whites of two eggs beaten stiff and four tablespoonsful of sugar added. Bake in a slow oven and serve cold with cream.

Sponge Bananas.—Cover the bottom of a baking dish with small sponges cakes or lady fingers. Upon this put a layer of peeled bananas whole. Sprinkle with sugar, add bits of butter and the juice of a lemon, cover with chopped nuts and bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with a custard or cream.

Household Talks

ONCE upon a time I was sent to interview Joe Jefferson. The dear old man had just finished dining off of clam chowder and was so enthused on the subject and talked so interestingly about it that I almost forgot to interview him.

Here are the directions he gave for an outdoor clam bake:

"A half bushel of clams will be enough for ten people. Dig them the day before so you can get the creek out of the your back, neck and arms and be rested enough to enjoy them. In fact the best way to go clamming is to take a beach man with you to do the digging while you pick out the most likely spots. If you must hoe your own row wear a broad-brimmed hat, high boots and gloves. By actual experience I know that a worm of beach tan stings for a week. Having caught the clams, or bought them, cover with cold water and build the oven, or show some one else how to do it."

"Place flat stones together in the form of a square, about two and a half feet each way; around the inside of this place other stones to form a bin. Fill this bin with small sticks. On these pile larger sticks crossways and on top of these a layer of stones. Start the fire and let it burn down until the stones on top settle into the coals. Cover the stones with green seaweed to the depth of an inch and a half."

"Wash some green corn, wash plenty of potatoes and a generous quantity of onions. Put the clams on the seaweed and cover them with the vegetables. Have a fresh cod cleaned; season with salt and pepper and wrap it in a cloth or in clay to keep out the ashes. Lay this on the vegetables. If you have a fresh lobster put it in too. Cover the whole with a sheet of cotton cloth, then with more wet seaweed and more hot stones and again more seaweed so no steam can escape. Wait as patiently as you can for forty-five minutes. Then remove the covering from one corner at a time so the rest may keep hot; and all hands take hold, fall to and help themselves, for a feast is before them."

Lincoln's novels of life on the Maine coast have made as all long for clam chowder made after Captain Eli's or the station master's recipe, but the glories of anticipation and the joys of realization have been described more fully than the actual preparation of the delectable compound. Other New Englanders give full directions and this is the time and place to follow them.

Chop three dozen clams in fine bits, peel and slice six large potatoes, dice four tomatoes and three onions. Crumble a half pound of crackers. Cut a half pound of salt pork in dice and fry it out in a frying pan until it is crisp and brown; take out the pork and fry the potatoes in the dripping; remove the potatoes and mix with the pork and fry the onions in the same pan. Now put a layer of the pork, potatoes and onions in the bottom of a casserole, then a layer of the clams and tomatoes and crackers; continue in this way until the ingredients are all used. Add seasoning of pepper and minced parsley as you work. Add water to almost cover and simmer for an hour; serve en casserole.

The Dreams of a Beauty Doctor

I HAD a dream, a strange dream, that left me wondering. I dreamed it was Monday morning at the office and I was reading the woes of the ladies with wrinkles and large noses and scant eyebrows and too much figure and too little figure. The mail was piled before me, mountain high, for there is no end to the wants of the women who crave beauty, and they all take Sunday to express their longing in pale ink on both sides of the paper. And as I read, a conviction came upon me like unto getting religion, to tell these women the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me. So I began.

Dear Peachy:—Somebody told me of using beaten-up eggs for washing the hair. Is this a good shampoo? BROWN LOCKS.

If you like scrambled eggs in your hair, go ahead. But be careful not to get near the fire, as eggs have a habit of cooking quickly. Eggs are considerably more costly than soap just at present, and for plain, every-day people, I would advise soap. But if you prefer a few frills, use eggs. The hair is being decorated nowadays in all sorts of unusual ways.

Dear Peachy:—I want to make my lower limbs larger; how can I do it? WALK. BROOMSTICKS.

Dear Peachy:—Won't you please tell me the name of a good powder to use? I never have used powder. But all the girls are doing it, and I thought I would like to. SWEET SIXTEEN.

Why use powder? Why pay out good money for something that is of no value and which you simply wipe off or wash off, or ought to, if you don't? Powder fills up the pores of the skin, and if you really want a good complexion, you've got to dig it out after you put it in, which is just another of the foolish ways by which women waste time. Nature puts a bloom on your skin lovelier than any that ever came out of a powder puff. Leave nature alone.

Dear Peachy:—I want to get my arms fat. They are quite undeveloped. Can you tell me some exercise that will help? SKINNY.

Doing the family wash is one of the very best ways in the world for developing the arms. Sweeping is another splendid exercise, also kneading bread. In fact, if you will just keep your housework up to the minute, you'll find your arms taking on curves of beauty.

Dear Peachy:—I like your articles in the "Banner of Truth" so much. They are of inestimable help to women. I read them every day, and now I am going to ask for a little help. I take good care of my complexion. I have it massaged and given electrical treatment every week. And I use cream on it every day, and almond oil and a good astringent. But with all my care, it is sallow and dry and not a bit pretty. Is there anything else I can do? WELL-GROOMED.

Yes there is—just one thing. Leave your poor skin alone. In the name of heaven give it a chance for a little natural existence. When your complexion was created, do you suppose it was intended to be massaged and electrified and creamed and oiled and astringentized? Keep yourself right inside and you'll be right outside.

Then I awoke with a violent start. It had all been a dream, only a dream.

Barbara Boyd.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of sixteen and correspond with a boy of eighteen. My parents are not willing for me to let the boy come to my home, but I let him come and do not tell him they quarrel with me about him when he leaves. They do not say a word until he leaves, but he already knows they do not want me to correspond with any boy.

I like the boy fine but not enough to say I love him, but I believe I could love him if my parents would not quarrel with me about him. He is a nice boy and always dressed neatly. He often tells me he loves me better than any one on earth.

UNSATISFIED GIRL.
My dear little girl, you don't love any boy yet, and I hope you have too much sense to believe that any boy of eighteen knows enough of real life to have a lasting love for a girl. If your correspondence is the kind you are willing to have your parents read, I see no harm in it, and there is certainly no harm in receiving visits from the lad if you are simply good friends. But your parents are quite right in not wishing you to have a lover yet. Wait until you are old enough to know your own heart.

Much Alike.

MAKES SUGGESTIONS ON CIVIC MATTERS

VAGABOND DISCUSSES CONDITIONS IN VARIOUS PARTS OF CITY.

TALKS OF THE SCHOOL

General Talk on Other Matters That Should Receive Attention By City Fathers.

To The Editor: I was surprised recently to have a prominent educator, a man of considerable experience with schools in various parts of the city, tell me our city schools were the dirtiest he ever saw. Not only the dirtiest but also the most unsanitary and that he was surprised that the city of Janesville should permit such conditions to exist. This man evidently meant what he said and as he is now a resident of the city, has children attending our schools, should know what he is talking about.

I made a partial investigation of conditions and while I found many things that could be remedied still I firmly believe that my friend drew the "long bow" so to speak in making his statement. True the majority of our school buildings are antiquated structures, remodeled from time to time, but still not presenting the up to date conditions that should exist. Perhaps it is from economy that these conditions exist but still I think more care should be taken with them, especially as to their sanitary conditions.

The toilet rooms for the boys and girls, while not exactly dirty, are far from sanitary in the modern sense of the word. They are located in out of the way places, in basements, dark and not easily approached. The modern idea is to have such places, light and airy, well ventilated and equipped with the latest sanitary devices. I fear they are not as closely inspected by members of the school board as they should be and perhaps at times somewhat neglected. This is a condition that should be remedied.

I also found that the school rooms for the most part have no screens on the windows. In this day and age of "swat the fly" it is almost criminal to neglect this important feature of sanitary conditions. True the schools are closed during the summer months, but in such weather as this, these open windows place a premium upon disease, if the truths told of the flies

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS, TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

REMOVES THE SCUM FROM THE TONGUE, SWEETENS A SOUR, GASSY, BILIOUS STOMACH, CLEANSSES YOUR LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS WITHGRIPES OR NAUSEA.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with effete waste matter not properly carried off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel washday. That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, sour bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system, thoroughly but gently—no grunting, no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are drugging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't be imposed upon.

carrying disease germs is to be believed. We even protect our horses with fly nets but our school children must sit and study with them buzzing around their heads, biting them and otherwise annoying them.

I also found that in at least one of the schools, the work of repainting the desks had evidently been put off until such a late date in the summer or had been done earlier and not permitted to dry thoroughly so at the time of the opening of the schools the children stick to the seats, that they are forced to place papers on the seats in order to protect themselves and then scrape the papers off at night so as to keep the seats clean. This is criminal in that parents cannot afford to purchase clothes for their children and dress them neatly and clean and have them ruined by gross carelessness on the part of some one who should know better.

In investigating the school condition I also talked with some of the parents. I learned that the cost of books, school books, was a most important item. The frequent change in the grade books means that entire new sets must be purchased each year, even when second hand volumes would do. One man, who has several children in the city schools, makes the following suggestion that sounds so good I give to the public for their consideration. The man is a student of the socialist ideas but is a good citizen and a hard working man who makes his dollars count.

"I am in favor of the city's owning the school books" this man stated. "It costs us so much each year for the books it would be better and more economical to have the city own the books, run it just as it does the library, make a penalty for abusing the books, perhaps pay a small rental for the use of them. In families where the ages of the children are far apart, the books used by the older ones are out of date and replaced by new volumes before the second child is ready to use them. It is a serious problem with many of us to have to pay five or six dollars to equip our children properly for school and while it may be socialistic doctrine to talk municipal ownership of school books still it is worth considering.

This man speaks from his personal experience. Now I have a suggestion to make if his idea appears to radical. Why not buy the volumes wholesale and have them sold to the children at cost? Of course this would work a hardship on the book stores that supply them but it means much in the way of finances to the average parent. All fathers and mothers want their children to be well equipped for after life and it costs money to do it. These suggestions I have made ought to be considered. They are not

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

GAMBLING. (By Howard L. Rann.)

GAMBLING is the process of betting whether the fourth ace is still in the deck or up somebody's sleeve. It is an exciting pastime and will keep a man awake easier than an ulcerated tooth.

Gambling comes in different sized packages, depending upon the roll of the gamblers. Some people get more pleasure out of losing pennies at a crack, in an attitude of pigeon-toed expectancy, than others do by bolstering up with eat margins on a falling market. One of the most popular forms of gambling is known as poker. This is a game in which one mild-faced gill is whip-sawed by two stout harpies in fancy vests by a series of spiral and costly raises, the last raise being usually sufficient to leave him in a breathless condition. The most harmless kind of poker is penny ante, which can be played for ten days hand-running without sending anybody home broke. A few years ago our society people discarded poker in favor of bridge whist. This is a very expensive form of entertainment, and when run at high voltage makes the game of draw poker look like playing marbles for keeps. After a man has run up against four or five stiff hands of bridge whist, with reverse english on them, he will be lucky to cash in at 10 cents on the dollar. One of the most genteel forms of gambling is the progressive euchre party, at which the most progressive sister draws a handpainted water pitcher and the undying enmity of all concerned. These parties are set upon by the clergy in local explosive sermons every so often, causing some of the most prominent members of the Ladies' Aid society to retire from the church in high dudgeon and a shrill falsetto. Husbands of the guests are not allowed to do anything except furnish the prizes. Although gambling is prohibited by law, Wall street has never been arrested. After all, there ought to be one place in this country where the unsatisfied sucker will not be interrupted in a wholesome effort to get stung.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Sept. 11.—Miss Zella Ganzell has returned from a three-weeks' visit with friends. Miss Ruth Hurley will shortly take a position in the telephone office as night operator. Mr. and Mrs. Orin Rime made a driving visit to town Monday. E. A. Doser has sold his office safe to the Old Fellow lodge. A few of our villagers attended the state fair in Milwaukee today. M. L. Osgard, Olaf Bertness and Thorval Thorsou were among the number. Milton Hamblett has a new four-passenger Ford car. Miss Nancy Hurley was given a gift shower Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. F. Silverthorne. Miss Hurley received many useful articles including two beautiful quilts from the Needlecraft society. Her marriage to Bennett Thorn is scheduled for the near future. The village board recently passed an ordinance requiring proper disposal of garbage. The back yards of our business section remain uncleared, and the garbage heaps are growing in size and deadliness. The mere passing of the ordinance is of absolutely no use. Either the people of our village regard the board and their doings as a vast joke, or the board is at fault by carefully avoiding enforcing this measure. From now on is the time that so-called "filth" diseases make their inroads. Cleaning up in the spring is not sufficient, for when a place is not cleaned for years notwithstanding an ordinance compelling such cleaning, there is grave fault somewhere. The sickness that comes in September and October arise from just such conditions as exist in this town. Decaying vegetables and fruit, uncared-for waste of any kinds, neglected alleys, all, not only produce these death dealing diseases, but breed the millions of flies that all the fly traps in town can not cope with. Enforcing an ordinance does not consist of simply notifying a property owner or tenant to clean up. It means seeing that the cleaning up is done and done thoroughly. It may seem something of a task to take a shovel and hoe and get out in the back yard and make conditions healthful, but it is not half as hard as it would be to sit at nights with a child suffering with typhoid fever. Nor is bending over the shovel one-half as humiliating to one's self-respect as it is to watch the look of contempt come over the face of an out-of-town visitor who may chance to regard certain of our rear yards.

Miss Ida Wellman of Monroe visited the latter part of last week here with her parents, Fred Wellman and family.

NEWVILLE

Newville, Sept. 12.—C. Sherman spent Monday at Milton Junction. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Sherman spent Sunday at Rockford. Harold, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Masse, died Wednesday morning after a brief illness. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the entire community. Mrs. Cooper of Edgerton, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cooper. Mrs. Park and Miss Violet Park have returned from Conference and report a fine time. A pastor from Indiana was appointed for this charge and will be here in a short time to begin work. Rev. Dehaven, who has been the pastor during the past year, was appointed Evangelist at-large. Mrs. J. W. Richardson and Mrs. C. B. Merrifield are visiting at their mother's today. A meeting was held at the creamery Monday evening, at which an effort was made to install electric lights in the homes of the community, getting power from Edgerton. Mrs. Max Brown returned from Evansville Saturday evening.

Berny swallowed dryly and said:

"No, it doesn't."

"All I can do now is to promise you that it stops today and for ever. You'll never be bothered again by anything of the kind. You can go back to your home and feel that never again will any one belonging to me try to come between you and your husband. I can't say any more. I can't talk about it. Good-by."

She turned away as she spoke and without a backward look walked rapidly down the gravel walk to the street. With an immovable, unflinching gaze, Berny followed her figure as it melted into the fog. It seemed only a moment before it was gone, appearing to dissolve into the curd-like currents that surrounded it.

Berny sat without moving on the bench, staring in the direction in which it had disappeared. Her hands lay limp in her lap, the fog beaded in a crystal haze on her clothes. She did not notice its growing chill nor the rapid downcoming of the dark. Her body was as motionless as a statue, but her mind was like a still, rankly-overgrown lake, suddenly churned into activity by unexpected gales of wind.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Wall Across the Way.

It was dark when Rose reached home. She had walked rapidly, mechanically taking familiar turns, creating the long slope of the hill at a pattering speed, rounding corners where gusts of light revealed her as a dark, flitting figure hurrying by almost at a run.

She was as oblivious to her surroundings as Berny, left motionless on the park bench. Never before in her life had anything like this touched her. Such few troubles as she had known had been those of a sheltered domestic life—the life of a cherished child whose dainty self-respect had never been blurred by a coarse breath. Now had come this horrible revelation. It shook the pretty world she had lived in like an earthquake. Idols lay broken in the dust. She had often seen her father rough and brutal as he was to Gene, but that was a different thing to her father's buying that wretched woman's husband, buying him for her. Berny's face rose up on the darkness with its pitiful assumption of jaunty bravado, its mean shrewishness under the coating of powder and rouge.

"How could they do it?" the girl panted to herself. "How could they ever do such a thing?"

She did not suspect Dominick. She could not have believed he was party to such an action unless he had told her so with his own lips. As she hurried on the thought that this was the woman he had bound himself to for the rest of his life mingled with the other more poignantly hateful thoughts, with a last sickening sense of wretchedness. The sudden, aghast consciousness of chaos, of an abrupt demolishing of the pleasant, familiar settings of a life that never comes to some, came to Rose that evening as she ran home through the fog.

She entered the house noiselessly and sped up to her room. It was time to dress for dinner, and an old woman-servant who had once been her nurse was waiting to help her. The mistress and maid were on terms of affectionate intimacy and the progress of the toilet was generally enlivened by gossip and laughter. Tonight the girl was singularly silent, responding with monosyllables and sometimes not at all to the remarks of her assistant.

As the woman drew the fastenings of the dress together, she could feel that the body the gown clipped so closely quivered, like the casing of machinery, vibrating to powerful concussions within.

The silence that continued to hold her throughout dinner passed unnoticed, as Gene was there and enlivened the passage of the meal by contributing an almost unbroken stream of talk. The night before he had been to a play, the plot of which, and its development in four acts, he now related with a fullness of detail which testified to the closeness of his attention and the accuracy of his memory. As each course was removed from the table, and the young man could once more give his undivided attention to the matter of discourse, he leaned back in his chair and took up the dropped thread with a fresh zest and some such remarks as:

"In the beginning of the next act, the hero comes in with his hat on, and first he says"—and so on.

With each of these renewals of the narrative the Bonanza King subsided against his chair-back in a limp attitude, staring with gloomy fixity at his boy, and expelling his breath in a long audible rush of air, which was sometimes a sigh and sometimes approached the proportions of a groan.

At the end of dinner, when Gene announced his intention of leaving as he was to attend a vaudeville performance, the old man began to show signs of reviving animation, going so far as politely to ask his son where he was going and with whom. His manner was marked by a warm, hearty encouragement, as he said:

"Get the whole vaudeville program down by heart, Gene, and you can tell it to us tomorrow night. There'll be about twelve parts to it, and Rose can order two extra courses for dinner, and we might hire some men with stringed instruments for an accompaniment."

Gene, with innocent good-humor, responded gaily:

"All right, father, I'll give it my best attention, and if there's anything especially good, I'll report to you. You and Rose might like to go some night."

His father, disappointed that his shaft had made no impression upon the young man's invulnerable amiability, emitted a scornful snort, and made no further response to Gene's cheery "Good night."

"There," he said, in tones expressing his relief, as the portiere dropped behind his son's departing figure, "he's gone! Now, Rosey, you and I can have a talk."

"Yes," said his daughter, looking at her coffee-cup. "That's what I wanted. I want to have a long talk with you tonight, papa."

"Fire away," said the old man. "I've had to listen to that fool for an hour, and it's broken my spirit. You can say anything you like."

"Not here," said his daughter; "in the sitting-room. I'll go in there and wait for you."

"Why not here? What's the matter with here? I like it better than the sitting-room. I'm more comfortable."

"No, the servants will want to clear the things away, and I don't want them to hear what I say."

"Tell the servants to go to hell," said the old man, who, relieved by Gene's departure, was becoming more cheerful.

"No, this is something—something serious. I'll go into the sitting-room and wait for you. When you've finished your coffee, come in."

She rose from her chair and walked to the door. He noticed that she was unusually unsmiling and it occurred to him that she had been so all through dinner.

"What is it, honey," he said, extending his hand toward her, "short on your allowance?"

"Oh, no, it's just—just something," she said, lifting the portiere. "Come when you're ready, I'll be there."

She walked up the hall to the sitting-room and there sat down in a low chair before the chimney-piece. The chill of the fog had penetrated the house and a fire had been kindled in the grate. On its quivering fluctuation of flame she fixed her eyes. With her hands pressed between her knees she sat immovable, thinking of what she was going to say, and so nervous that the blood sang in her ears and the palms of her hands, clasped tight together, were damp. She had never in her life shrunk so before an allotted task. It sickened her and she was determined to do it, to thrust it out to the end. When she heard her father's step in the passage her heart began to beat like a woman's waiting for her lover. She straightened herself and drew an inspiration from the bottom of her lungs to try to give herself breath—wherever it was to speak.

The old man flung himself into an arm-chair at one side of the fireplace, jerked a small table to his elbow, reached creakingly for an ash tray, and, having made himself comfortable, took his cigar from his mouth and said:

"Well, let's hear about this serious matter that's making you look like a tragedy queen."

"It is serious," she said slowly. "It's something that you won't like to hear about."

"Hit me with it," he said, wondering a little what it could be. "Gene's gone and a child could eat out of my hand now."

Looking into the fire, Rose said:

"I was out walking this afternoon and down in the Union Street plaza a woman stopped me. I'd never seen her before. She was Mrs. Dominick Ryan."

The old man's face became a study. A certain whimsical tenderness that was generally in it when he spoke to his daughter vanished as if by magic. It was as if a light had gone out. He continued to look at her with something of blankness in his countenance, as if, for the first moment of shock, every faculty was held in suspense, waiting for the next words. He held his cigar, nipped between a pair of stumpy fingers, out away from him over the arm of the chair.

"Well," he said quietly, "and what had she to say to you?"

"The most disagreeable things I think any one ever said to me in my life. If they're true, they're just too dreadful!" she stopped, balking from the final disclosure.

"Suppose you tell me what they were?" he said with the same almost hushed quietness.

"She said that you and Mrs. Ryan were offering her money—a good deal of money, three hundred thousand dollars was the amount, I think—to leave her husband so that he could get a divorce from her, and then—"

she swallowed as if to swallow down this last unbearable indignity—"and then be free to marry me."

So Berny had told all. If deep, unspoken curses could have killed her, she would have died that moment.

"It is true?" Rose asked.

"Well, yes," said the old man in a perfectly natural tone of dubious consideration, "it's a fairly accurate statement."

"Oh, papa," cried his daughter, "how could you have done it? How could you have done such a thing? Such a hateful, horrible thing!"

"Horrible thing?" he repeated with an air of almost naive astonishment. "What's horrible about it?"

"You know. I don't have to tell you; you know. Don't say to me that you don't think it's horrible. Don't make me feel as if we were suddenly thousands of miles apart."

The Bonanza King knew that in many matters, in most matters involving questions of ethics, they were more thousands of miles apart than she even now suspected. That was one of the reasons why he would have liked to kill Berny, who, for the first time, had brought this dissimilarity in their points of view to his daughter's unwilling consideration. He spoke slowly and vaguely to gain time. He knew it was a critical moment in the relations between himself and the one creature in the world he loved.

"I don't want you to feel that way."

With the Baked Beans.

She was five years old and lived in the city. Her mother had taken her to a farm for a visit and was pointing out the little vegetables to the little girl. "These are cabbages," said the mother, pointing to some cabbage plants. "Where does the corn beef grow?" said the miss, in all seriousness.

dearie," he said easily. "Maybe there are things in this matter you don't know about or understand. And, anyway, what's there so horrible in trying to separate a man and woman who are unhappily married and can't bear the sight of each other?"

"You were separating them for me," she said in a low voice.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Sept. 12 1892.—
 Captain Hart Dead.—A telegram received from Mrs. Samuel Hart from Sioux City, Iowa by Mr. A. T. Hart, conveyed the news of the death of his son, Captain Samuel Hart. Mr. Hart's remains arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon and were brought

RESOLUTIONS.

Lives there a man with soul so dead
 Who never to himself hath said:
 "Never again?"
 Who swears no more to look on wine
 Or linger where the bright lights shine—
 And swears in vain?

Where is a pal?

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

 BY WALT MASON

Ab, beauty is a rare possession! It makes this life here fit to live. And there are beauties of expression which beat all charms that drugs will give. Gemina has a fine complexion, and pearly teeth and azure eyes, and golden ringlets, in connexion with rats and things that I despise. When first you see this glowing maiden with all her wealth of dazzling charms, you think she's come direct from Aiden, and long to take her in your arms. But when you know the damsel better she doesn't satisfy the soul; alas, she is a chronic fretter—her temper isn't in control. She sulks and deals in pettish BEAUTY HINTS phrases, and all such things will leave their trace; in time they will distort like blazes that lovely and angelic face. Methinks I see her when she's older, with shrewish mouth and crimson cheek, and he will be a suitor bolder than Rons who her hand will seek. Mirandy has a disposition as sweet as honey from the comb; it's always been her same ambition to make things pleasant in her home. She doesn't spend her time nagging; kind words are all she ever said; she's prettier than any wagon that ever yet was painted red, and as the years are swiftly sliding, still prettier this girl will grow, till on his pale white steed comes riding the knight with whom we all must go.

Value of Good Maxims.
 Good maxims are germs of all good; firmly impressed on the memory, they nourish the will.—Joubert.

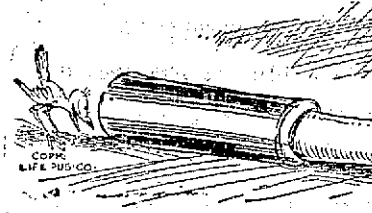

HAD A GROUCH

Willie—Wot's de matter, Lulu? You look as if you owed yourself some money.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY
 You may expect a successful year if you refrain from quarrels and have due regard for the rights of others.

"Who would ever thought that we are both the same size!"

Some agreement will be made by you with a person of the opposite sex. Those born today will have so many good qualities that their faults will seem insignificant. The worst of these will be a tendency to speak ill of others. In business, social affairs or in marriage they will be successful.

GOT WHAT HE DESERVED

Peter—What do yer think of Cheeky Bill havin' de nerve to tell dat lady in de wayside cottage he was a sport, and never ate anything but club sandwiches?
 Weary—And did he get one dere?
 Pete—Well, he got de club, but not de sandwich.

DINNER STORIES

Judge Caleb Norris served in the latest constitutional convention in Ohio. One day they brought up a proposition to abolish coroners. The judge is a jurist of the old school. "Abolish coroners!" he shouted. "Well, then, let's go further and abolish the dead!"

In a case once tried before Judge Robert C. Grier, Andrew G. Curtin, then a young man, made an impassioned speech in defence of a man about whose guilt there could be little doubt. And to the surprise of everybody the verdict was "not guilty." Judge Grier glared at the jury with a look of disgust, and then drew out in his squeaky voice. "Humph, gentlemen, this is like ordering soldiers to shoot at a pigeon and then miss the pigeon."

Robert Henri, the artist, was talking at the annual exhibition of the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts about certain old masters. "Take, for instance," he said, "Morland. The illustrious and indefatigable Morland painted in the course of forty years 4,000 pictures. And of these—Mr. Henri smiled his quiet and intelligent smile. "Of these," he continued, "no less than 8,000 are still extant."

Apologies of the downfall of Ernest Terah Holey, the English promoter, Senator La Follette said the other day in Washington: "The English law doesn't allow a man as much rope as the American law. A very wealthy American once said to an Englishman: "Oh, yes, you have a good trade here in England, perhaps, but, as far as Napoleons of finance go, why, I have never once met a Napoleon of finance in all my visits to London." "No, probably not," the Englishman replied. "You see, we keep our Napoleons of finance in jail."

Tommy Deagen, soldier of fortune and distinctive character, worked for the trolley company in the old days—"the good old days," he called them, but that is largely his point of view. He had worked five or six days, and he had worked hard, as conductor. He liked the work and he found it worth while. One day as he hopped off the car at the division office he saw a crowd of conductors standing around. "What's this, boys? A strike?" he asked in surprise. "Nope," was the reply; "this is pay day. Didn't you know it?" "What?" said Deagen; "do they pay you, too?"

$80,000,000.00 Lost Annually by Wage Earners.

Dr. Sadler estimates that about $80,000,000.00 in wages is lost annually to the American people as a direct result of colds. Lost time means lost wages and doctoring is expensive. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. It will stop the cough, and heal and soothe the sore and inflamed air passages. Cure your common colds quickly, and prevent their developing into more serious conditions. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound contains no opiates. Is safe for children. The genuine is in the yellow package. Badger Drug Co.
